

Panic Lesson 17

SCRIPTURE MEMORY

Anything to photocopy? Yes

Commercials for Bible Memory (1 for each student)

Here are the parts of this lesson:

- ♦ Slap Slap game
- ♦ Commercials for Bible Memory discussion starter
- ♦ Hidden Treasure discussion starter for Bible study

GAME

SLAP SLAP

Height, weight, and sex are not factors to win this game. Simply have two players face each other and raise their hands above their shoulders and then match hands. A distance of 18 to 36 inches may separate the players, but as the players match hands, they should be able to push each other's hands and arms back and forth comfortably (always above the shoulders). At a signal the players attempt to slap or push the other's hands so as to force the other off balance. The first person to lose his balance or move either foot gives way to another challenger, with the winner staying in. Ron Erber

DISCUSSION STARTER

COMMERCIALS FOR BIBLE MEMORY

Pair Bible verses with marketing slogans to encourage kids to recall the verses, and to invest the slogans with spiritual meanings.

Introduce the activity by reproducing and distributing this sheet. Ask students to match each slogan to the company or product it advertises. Here are the answers:

1. i
2. o
3. n
4. q
5. q
6. b
7. h
8. k
9. e
10. p
11. f
12. r
13. g
14. t
15. c
16. a
17. m
18. s
19. d
20. j
21. l

Now explore these questions:

1. How do we know and remember these phrases and products? It's the job of advertisers to make up catchy phrases, tunes, and situations that are easily repeated and/or associated with the business or product.
2. Why do we memorize things? God made us with a memory that sometimes functions independently; memorizing makes life

- When memorizing quote the topic, the reference, and the verse.
- Break the verse down into smaller phrases and work on memorizing one phrase at a time until you finish the entire verse.
- Start working on a new verse before you go to bed at night. You tend to remember what you are thinking about just before you fall asleep.
- Write out the verses on spiral-bound 3x5 index cards so you can carry them with you and work on them wherever you go.
- Use time that's often wasted, such as traveling to and from school, during meals, while exercising or jogging. This is an especially good way to memorize the books of the Bible. Rather than counting push-ups, recite the Bible books. You just may be able to increase your push-up maximum because you'll have no mental block as you often do when you approach a certain number.
- Accountability! Work with a partner to whom you can be accountable. Check up on each other and quiz each other.
- Set a goal (one or two verses a week, for example), then reward yourself or your partner when either or both of you consistently accomplish your goals over a one- or two-month period.
- Review, review, review. If you don't use your verses regularly, you will lose them.
